Pacific Labour Scheme

The Pacific Labour Scheme (PLS) is an employer sponsored program open to all industries—including tourism and hospitality providers in rural and regional Australia.

The PLS offers employers access to a stable workforce when there is not enough local Australian labour to meet demand. Eligible employers can recruit Pacific island and Timorese workers for low-skilled and semi-skilled roles for between one and three years.

This scheme complements the Seasonal Worker Programme.

Seasonal Worker Programme

The Seasonal Worker Programme (SWP) offers employers in the agriculture sector and employers in selected locations in the accommodation sector access to a reliable, returning workforce when there is not enough local Australian labour to meet seasonal demand.

The SWP provides employers with access to seasonal workers from Pacific island countries and Timor-Leste for up to nine-months.
